

Broken Footnotes on Camp

Two theatre queens, Dickie Beau and Jack Ferver, are offering a free participatory workshop at The Chocolate Factory for independent performance makers interested in exploring the interface between their authentic inner beings and their appearances.

Where: The Chocolate Factory

When: Saturday Nov 3rd and Sunday Nov 4th, 11am - 7pm

The selected group will explore the embodiment of archetypes using the work of playwright Tennessee Williams, with a particular focus on 'A Streetcar Named Desire'.

Subjects are likely to include: ways of feeling; camp vs neo-camp; catharsis; connectedness; comedy; and cruelty.

A good deal of the workshop may also be left to that other C: chance.

If you are interested, please send an email with the subject line bearing the name of your favorite character, and one or two sentences explaining why you'd like to do this workshop, to:

info@dickiebeau.com

by 12 noon on Friday October 26th

Please note, places are limited.